Special Dispatch to The Constitution.

WASHINGTON, April 27 .- Since THE CONSTI-TUTION announced, on good authority, a few weeks ago, that Mr. Stephens had determined to retire from public life, he has been constantly receiving from friends here and in Georgia remonstrances against such a resolution. As the gubernatorial campaign apthese importunities have increased until now every day brings its supply. To-night I said arrears, $4,746,862. Ohio is a good third in order, with 24,663 pensioners, the annual value of whose pensions was $2,638,900, but to whom were paid in annual payments and arrears, $4,941,520. Pensioners in Indiana, to him:

"Mr. Stephens, the people of Georgia do not seem disposed to allow you to retire."

"I don't know," said he. "I receive a great many letters on the subject, more I think han I ever received on any question before. They come from my own district and from others, and from all parts of the state. They come from organized democrats, from new movement men and from republicans."

"What is the tenor of those letters?" I

"They do not insist so much on my returning to congress as on my making the race for governor. They urge me for many reasons to do so. They seem to believe that certain troubles are threatened, which I might assist in averting, and that some dissensions exist in the democratic party which I might help to beal. In fact, I have been assured by men on whose judgment I can rely that there is a general wish among the people of Georgia that I should be a candidate for governor."

"How have you answered these letters and

"How could I, except as I answered a friend who wrote the other day and asked me if my resolution to retire was irrevocable and inexorable? I wrote him that I thought no public man had a right to say that. He ought to be at all times at the command of his people, if it lay in his power to serve them."

"What would prevent you from answering a call of the people to the office of governor?"

"A great deal depends on my health. I am an old man, and though I have been long in public life, my happiest and most profitable years were those that passed between my resignation in 1859 and the beginning of the

is now, and there is a general wish to have you enter the gubernatorial canvass will you you enter the gubernatorial canvass, will you not deem it your duty to do so?"

"With my present state of health there is no imperious reason why I should not. When I resigned, in 1859, I expected to spend the remnant of my days in private life, but there was a demand from my people that I should go to Montgomery to the provisional congress, and I thought it was my duty to go and serve them the best I could, though I foresaw the dark days surely coming."

The stream of visitors constantly pouring into the great Georgian's room here interrupted the conversation. As to his health, if I were to judge by appearances, I should say he was as well to-night as when I saw him 22 years ago stumping in Georgia with Stephen A. Douglas.

THE RIVER AND HARBOR BILL.

Georgia will be to secure a competing line to New York. Senator Frye, who introduced the bill, says it is utterly impossible for any other road to be built from this sylvania road, which so surely controls the legislatures of the states through which the road will be obliged to pass, unless a national charter can be secured. The question as to whether the government can exercise in such The stream of visitors constantly pouring

Georgia will not get as much in the river and harbor bill as she asked, but more than she ever got before at one time. Savannah will have $200,000; Brunswick falls far below her expectations, and gets only $20,000. Mr. Clements, by the most untiring perseverance, has succeeded in bagging $83,000 for the Coosa, $23,000 more than it received last year. In spite of Judge Buchanan's devoted labors, no appropriation is made for the upper Chattahoochee, and $20,000 only for the lower Chattahoochee. The Flint and Ocmulgee rivers will get about the usual amounts. But for the concerted efforts of the delegation and Mayor Wheaton and Major Warren, Savannah would have been left with only $100,000. Efforts to increase the appropriations by amendments in the house will be made, but the annual value of the pension roll, and the amount actually paid, including arrears, for the year ending September 4, 1881. The secretary of the interior, through Commissioner Dudley, has obtained the information called for and has sent it to the senate. The number of pensioners on the roll in September, 1881. was 269,851, the annual value of whose pensions was $29,263,459, Of these 12,000 were not paid, and the pensioners not having called for their pensions within three years they have lapsed; 5,000 were sailors, whose residences were not known, and 252,851 pensioners were paid; the amount required to pay their annual pensions and arrears being $51,224,204. Pennsylva-nia comes next in importance to New York, with 28,292 pensioners; annual value of pen-sions, $3,027,296, and annual payments and arrears, $5,746,862. THE CONTESTED ELECTION CASE. The house then resumed consideration of Iowa, Maine, Massachusetts and Michigan received upward of $2,000,000 in annual payments and arrears, and in Kanthe contested election case of Lynch vs. Chalmers. Mr. Hammond, of Georgia, submitted an expansive argument in support of the views of the minority. Mr. Lynch, the contestant, was then accorded the floor, and as he rose to speak at the desk which was formerly occupied by Garfield, he was greeted with sas, Kentucky, Missouri, New Jersey and Wisconsin, they received upward of $1,000,-000. Alaska has one pensioner who received $176. The most populous congressional district is the first of Kansas, which has 2,930 some applause from the galleries. Disclaiming any intention to discuss the legal points of the case, he said that he would confine himself to a consideration of the disreputable largest amount was paid to pensioners was the third of Maine, which has 2,545 pensioners, who were paid $642,357. The comparative gain subsequent to September, 1881, will be generally distributed among the eastern, middle, and western states, and in Tennessee election in vogue in Mis sissippi, of which the pending case was the ratural and necessary outgrowth. The pre-tended claim of General Chalmers to a seat was based on the action of the county return-ing boards. Reading from an interview with General Chalmers, published in the New York Tribune shortly after the election, to the effect that he wanted a white man's government in Mississippi, and would resort to any means short of open violence to accomplish that object, Mr. Lynch admitted that Genthat object, Mr. Lynch admitted that General Chalmers was authorized to speak for the bourbons of Mississippi, but emphatically denied his authority to speak for the conserative white people. He denied that race prejudice had anything to do with the fraud and violence in the southern states. The antipathy of the bourbons was not a race antipathy of the bourbons was not a race antipathy.

He also states that Auditor McGrew and his assistants had received and divided certain sums resulting from remitted fines. F. H. R.

He asserted, with feelings of deep mortification and profound regret, that in the official person of the contestee in this case the country was presented with a living monument to rifled ballot-boxes and stifled public justice. Though that gentleman had occupied ime. The latter stipulated that "the govern-ments of China and of the United States muments of China and of the United States nutually agree and undertake that Chinese subjects shall not be permitted to import opium into any of the ports of the United States, and that citizens of the United States shall not be permitted to import opium into any of the open port to any other open port or to buy and sell opium in any of the open ports of China." This absolute prohibition extends to the ves-sels owned by the citizens or subjects of either justice. Though that gentleman had occupied seat on this floor for the last five years, yet sets owned by the citizens of studects of either power, to foreign vessels employed by them or to vessels owned by the citizens or subjects of either power and employed by other persons for the transportation of opium. It is provided that these provisions shall be enforced by appropriate legislation on the part of China and of the United States, and that the benefits of the favored claims in existing no one knew better than himself, that he had never, with possibly one exception, received as many as one-third of the votes cast at any election at which he had been a candidate. The fraudulent acts committed by his friends and supporters, and which had resulted in his being returned to a seat on this floor, had treaties shall not be claimed by the citizens or subjects of either power as against the pro-his being returned to a seat on this floor, had been received by him with either silent acquiescence or public approval. In the further course of his speech Mr. Lynch characterized General Chalmers as a maligner of his section and a traducer of the most respectable and intelligent portion of his own people. Referring to what he termed the "bourbon method of electing," he declared that the republican party would continue to wager an uncessing war upon that method until the of this article of the treaty. The order went into force on April 16, and since then not an ounce of Chinese opium has been permitted to pass through the custom house. The order went into force on April 16, and since then not an ounce of Chinese opium has been permitted to pass through the custom house. The order went into among the Chinese, the order went into among the Chinese orders, for they have not permitted any of the opium imported by them to remain in bond any longer than was absolutely necessary, and when the treasury order went into effect on Monday the Luisted States bonded was about that there must be a centralized to be determined that if it could not destroy the Chinese. There are a number of firms who were in some manner advised in advance of the secretary's orders, for they have not permitted any of the opium imported by them to remain in bond any longer than was absolutely necessary, and when the tright of every American citizen to cast his ballot for the party and the man of his ballot for the party and the man unceasing war upon that method until the the government in one way, it would in another, for it was an incontrovertible and indisputable fact that the sanctity and the purity of the ballot, was the chief pillar of our governmental structure. Destroy that pillar, and the structure must necessarily fall. He spoke not in behalf of himself, but in behalf of his party, when he declared that this sys-tem of election fraud in several of the south-ern states, through, and by which that section had been made solid in support of one of the great political parties of the day, ought, must and would be destroyed. General Chalmers, the contestee, was the next speaker. Referring to the speech just delivered by Mr. Lynch, he asserted that it it was but a repetition of what had been said time and time again by the contestant and his co-conspirators, who had, through the public press of the country, endeavored to a provision to protect more securely the in-terest of the government and prevent the possibility of a sale of the charter by the company, or a consolidation with any other public press of the country, endeavored to destroy the reputation of the white people of Mississippi. The notices of contest was filled with just such generalities. Charges of fraud/ violence and all manner of corruption in Mississippi, and yet when those charges came to be tried they could not be substantiated. The contestant had undertaken to arraign him personally before congress, but he (Chalmers) challenged the gentleman to find in the record a line or syllable, from the beginning to the end, that cast any aspersion on his character. He then entered into an exhaustive review of the facts of the case as exhibited by the record, and which failed, he claimed, to prove any act of fraud or violence. Instead of having made his contest with the rifle and the shot gun, it was a matter of history that he had made it with a brass band blown by colored musicians in a patriotic wagon decked in red, white and blue. In conclusion he said: If reason and shame have fled to brutish beast, if a sacrifice of democrats is to be made, and I am to be the first victim, then I say go ahead. You have the power, if you choose, to exercise it. You will regret it more than I. It may drive me from my seat by force and place another in it. Whenever you look at him you will be reminded of this day's outrage, and if conscience be not a canker in your breast, in the stillness of night, it will haunt you with the recollection night, it will maint you with the reconcection that truth, justice and law were immolated, and that you were the high priest that officiated at the unholy sacrifices." [Applause on the democratic side.] Mr. Delmotte closed the day's debate with an argument in favor of Lynch to the seat, and then the matter went over. The previous question will probably over. The previous question will probably be called at 2 o'clock to-morrow. THE INDIAN OUTBAGE.

LOOSE WORK IN THE LAND OFFICE

Thousands of Acres Wrongfully Given to Land Gran Washington, April 26.—The assistant law elerk of the general land office, Mr. J. W. Le Barnes, makes an interesting statement about the manner in which the land grant railroads The Cedar Rapids and Missouri River rail road is a completed road under the grants available for its construction, and its total length, as certified by the governor of the state, is 271.6 miles. The grants were six sections per mile, or 1.042,944 acres, but the amount of land actually certified and patented under the grant is 1,141,690 acres, or inder the grant is 98,746 acres more than the greatest possible amount that could rightfully be embraced in the grant. The grant was diminished however, by overlapping grants of other roads to the extent of 25 per cent., so that the ex-cess given to the company is really more than 300,000 acres. For 56 1-6 miles of road the Sioux City and St. Paul road, of Iowa, was entitled to 359,520 acres at the utmost but 407,910 acres have been certified and parented to it, while the grant ought to have been diminished not less than 37,000 acres by other overlapping grants. The St. Paul and Sioux City road, of Minnesota, was entitled to $50,000 acres, but has received 1,200,358 acres, an excess of 350,358 acres. The St. Paul and Pacific road in Minnesota has also received an excess of the minimum area of its grant, and the legal and actual reductions which the grant is subject do not appear to have been considered.

The area given to the Iowa Falls and Sioux City road, in Iowa, is 25,000 acres in excess of its maximum grant, and it has received 100,000 acres since 1875. The Winona and St. Peter's company is credited with a nominal area of 1,410,000 acres, and it was estimated that the actual area to which it was entitled was 710,000 acres, but it has received 1,668,007 acres, an excess of more than 250,000 acres over the geographical limits of the grant, and an excess of nearly 1,000,000 acres over the real area of the grant. It received nearly 3,000 acres in 1879.

In several other cases the probable area of grants has been exceeded. The total area of the Alabama and Chattanooga road's grant would be 944,000 acres if there were no reductions, but it was originally estimated that the area would be only 461,000 acres, because of reductions. The road has already received more than 600,000 acres. In many cases ands to which companies were entitled upon the completion of their roads have been with held from settlement for many years, al-though the roads have not even been begun

The grant to the Gulf and Ship Island road, in Mississippi, was made in 1856, and it expired in 1866. No road has been built and no lands have been applied for, but all the public lands within alternate sections for a breadth of 30 miles on the line of the proposed road, and for a length of 170 miles, were withdrawn from settlement in 1860 and have ever since been held in reservation. The Coosa and Tennessee road in Alabama has not been built, but the company has received 67,000 acres, and many thousands of acres besides have been withdrawn since 1858. For 30 miles the lands along the Coosa and Chattanooga road have been reserved since 1858, but the road have been reserved since 1808, but the road has not been built. The St. Louis and Iron Mountain grant was abandoned by the company, but the lands for 20 miles on each side of the line first proposed are not open to the settler. The land office has no official report of the construction of any part of the Pensacola and Georgia road in Florida. There is unofficial information that 150 miles There is unofficial information that 150 mile have been built, but 1,250,000 acres were ce tified or patented in advance of construction or 1,000,000 acres more than the road is ye entitled to. The road was to be 408 long, but the grant expired in 1866. The lands along the whole line were withdrawn from settlement in 1857, and are still preserved. These are only a few instances of the loose manner in which the land office has carried on its business with the land grant roads to the disadvantage of the settler

BLAINE AND BELMONT.

THE RECRIMINATION IN THE COM MITTEE ROOM.

nont Presses Mr. Blaine With Ob es ions—Both Gentlemen Pounding the Table

-How the Trescott Letter Come to be Published—How the Day Closed.

WASHINGTON, April 27 .- At the close of Mr Belmont's cross-examination of Mr. Blaine, a most exciting and unusual scene occurred in the foreign affairs committee room. Mr. Blaine stated that as Belmont, after being warned on Monday, had persisted in entirely misquoting his dispatches and putting upon them a construction utterly foreign, he was compelled to change his opinion of him which had hitherto been that he was a gentleman.

A PASSAGE OF WORDS

An exciting colloquy ensued, which the committee soon was unable to interrupt. Mr. Belmont intimated that he would deal with Mr. Blaine in private, and followed it up with the words; "I believe that you are a bully and a coward." Mr. Blaine, addressing the committee, and ignoring Mr. Belmont, replied: "Mr. Chairman, this young man, has disgraced himself. He has been put forward by those who are behind him to insult but he is incapable of doing so." The scene was a most remarkable one, notwithstanding the efforts of the chairman to smooth the trou-bled waters and obviate the necessity for any misunderstanding MORE FUN EXPECTED.

The impression prevailed at the adjournment of the meeting that the dispute had by no means ended. It is a subject of comment on all sides this afternoon.

THE EXAMINATION BENEWED.

When the committee reassembled to-day, ooth Blaine and Belmont gave evidence from both Biaine and Belmont gave evidence from their manner and expression of countenance that they were prepared for an unfriendly en-counter. Belmont first presented a copy of Evarts's report to congress on the Landreau claim, which Blaine said yesterday omitted the word "unofficial" in referring to Secre-tary Fish's letter of instruction to our then which the Perm woon, this same minister to Peru upon this same claim. Secretary Fish's qualification of his instruction at that time with the word 'unofficial" is at the root of the present difficulty between Blaine and Belmon'. Belmont construing Blaine's omission to thus qualify his dispatch to Hurlbut to signify that officia pressure upon Peru in favor of the Peruvian company was contemplated. Blaine began to read Evarts' letter when Belmont stopped him and stated that he had chosen to read a portion of the letter which did not contain portion of the letter which did not contain the disputed words. Blaine said: "Yes, Evarts uses the word in one place and omits it in another, showing its utter inconsequentiality." Before Belmont could proceed, Blaine said he desired to make a statement, and said that Belmont exhausted two hours of the time of the compilities westerday in travelling in a circle. He mittee yesterday in traveling in a circle. He repeated his questions six or eight or ten times over. Of course he has the right, but it is all based on the fact that he made two misquotations, absolute, palpable misquota-tions, and this course of his is to establish his tions, and thus course of his is to establish his justification in doing that. He has not yet touched upon it. While I have the largest possible stock of patience, I would rather that he come directly to the point. There are many important points that I would like to be heard upon; but the iteration and reiteration of the same questions in order to vindicate Belmont for having made the blunder to misquote me in two particulars, is a little too exhausting. He has made two pal-pable misquotations, and has made no expla-nation of them when, as a gentleman as I understood him to be, he ought to state frankly that he did it. Mr. Blaine, who had been standing and speaking with a good deal of excitement, here took his seat, and Mr. Belmont jumped from his chair, but before he could reply, the chairman broke in and said: "I desire to say that the chairman, representing the commi-tee, is reluctant to put any restrictions on th course of the conduct of the examination. Mr. Belmont insists on his right to ex-amine in his own way. I have no doubt that Mr. Blaine will exercise the virtue of patience, and I presume that in pursuing that course we shall finish the examination nuch sooner than if we were to restrict either

THE QUESTIONING RESUMED.

Chairman Williams finally restored a measure of quiet, when Mr. Belmont proceeded to question: "Did your resolution of the house f representatives, to which you have referred, simply authorize the state department to exercise the kindly offices of the govern-ment in behalf of this Landreau claimant, this lobbyist who had been hanging around the capitol, who had trumped up a claims.
At this point Mr. Dunnell, with some vehemence, inte rupted with a protest—"As a member of this committee, I protest against this style of putting stump speeches into the body of a question."

Mr. Belmont answered Mr. Dunnell that stump speeches had been permitted to be injected into the witness's replies, and that the committee should have enforced Mr. Dunnell's

The rasping between Belmont and Blaine continued throughout the examination. Belmont's questions were directed to inducing Blaine to interpret his dispatches. Blaine's auswers were to read the dispatches and stop there, saying he was unable to add anything further, "that's all there was in it." Belmont asked: "What claim Landreau had upon the good offices of this government?" Blaine asked: "What claim Landreau had upon the good offices of this government?" Blaine answered: "In the name of an American citizen." Belmont said no evidence existed of his naturalization. Blaine replied that the senate had passed upon that question in confirming him as United States consul. To this Belmont replied by reading the names of several U. S. consuls who, he stated, are not citizens of the United States. Blaine said he was ignorant of the States. Blaine said he was ignorant of the matter stated by Belmont, but if the facts were as claimed it was a matter to look into, as the law was explicit that none but citizens can be United.

as the law was explicit that none but citizens can be United States consuls. Representative Walker suggested that another investigation seemed imminent.

A MISUNDERSTANDING WITH THE WHITE HOUSE.
Belmont then referred to the letter of instructions to Trescot, and Blaine said: "I must confess I was greatly surprised at the publication of that dispatch. I thought I take an understanding with the president that had an understanding with the president that the dispatch should not be published until Trescot returned from South America. When I heard that it had been sent to the senate

I heard that it had been sent to the senate I telegraphed immediately to the white house, and urged that it might be withheld from the associated press. That evening I sent a note to the president, stating my reasons why it ought to be withheld. It was, however, published, and I believe there have been no more pernicious results from the improper publication of state department dispatches than have resulted from this. Trescot considered his mission at South America ended, and from that day there has been no earthly use from that day there has been no earthly use of keeping him there." Mr. Belmont then stated that he had no more questions to

Mr. Morris is one of the veteran farmers, and while of course he regrets this loss, he to-day is as full of vim and energy as ever. He came out of the war as poor as the majority of the 'confeds,' but to-day he is beginning to loom up as one of our rich men, his present home which is to-day one of the best little farms in the country, was sold to him because the owner considered he had worn it out and he could not make a living on it. By thorough cultivation, rotating crops and sowing plenti-fully of grain, he to-day calculates on reaping fully of grain, he to-day calculates on reaping not only enough grain to do his own use, but will sell nearly enough to pay the expen-ses of his farm and have his cotton crop com-paratively as a surplus, a hundred and fifty bales or more. special Correspondence of The Constitution GRIFFIN, April 27 .- Memorial day was observed here with more than usual interest. The hundred little mounds that mark the last resting place of our fallen braves had been previously swept off and all was in readiness for the beautiful floral tributes that had been prepared to freshen our memories of the heroes who had lain down their lives for the lost ause. Hon. James S. Boynton was marshal of the day, and the grand procession, which formed at the junction of Hill and Solomon streets, composed of citizens and soldiery and other private orders of the city, presented quite an imposing appearance as they went with solemn step to Stonewall cemetery. Arriving here, the crowd soon gathered around the orator's stand, and the order of exercises commenced about 4:30 p. m. The programme was as follows:

IN COLUMBUS. Condensed from the Columbus Times.

Yesterday ushered in beautiful and bright the seventeenth anniversary of the beautiful custom of laying floral offerings on the graves of the confederate dead, who lie sleeping on a thousand hills and cemeteris from Virginia to the gulf. Inaugurated in Columbus, the beautiful city of the Chattaboochee, the custom has become universal all over the south, and wherever is erected shaft, rude headboard or mound of earth showing the resting place of the slumbering heroes of the "lost cause," loving hands strew-beautiful flowers or drop a tear on the sod above the remains, a loving duty the fair women of the south claim they owe to the heroes who perished in the cause that was lost, battling for liberty, country and that was lost, battling for liberty, country and home. The exercises began at the opera house at 3:30 o'clock and were continued till 5, when the procession moved to the cemetery. The exercises were opened with prayer by Rev. W. C. Lovett, of St. Paul church, after which a beautiful song was sung by Madame Hermon Perlet. Hon. Reese Crawford then stepped to the front of the stage and in the following beautiful languages introduced. beautiful language introduced Mrs. Louise Clark Pyrnelle, saying: A beloved, gifted and lamented woman lies sweetly sleeping in yonder cemetery. George W. Chase, Jr.

Hon. Reese Crawford then introduced the orator for the occasion, the Rev. S. P. Callaway, who delivered a most chaste and elegant address in which he said among other things; Heaven forbid that I should seek to pluck a sin-gle leaf from the laurel crown of that victorious general whose name is "far sounded among men of noble deeds," and who has been honored of all 1e ple whose shores he has visited; but as I have read of his public entries into great cities, geeted by the acclamations of the populace, my thoughts have been raised to a grander scene of which the honors paid General Grant were but the faintest type—the entrance of the disentiralled spirit of Lee—the Christian warrior—whose heart broke with the woes of his people, but whose patient lips gave no sign—welcomed of angels into the Jerusalem above And I have thought that the contrast lilustrated the difference between heaven's judgment and that of men concerning the transactions of this earth—the commander of a successful army, receiving the unlimited homage of the "base horn of time"—the leader of a holy but "lost cause," remanded to obscurity and covered with obliviou by the weakness of men, but crowned by the King of kings with an eternal "weight of glory."

And is such a cause indeed lost? The cause sanctified by the sword of Lee, the prayers of Jackson; the chivalry of Stuart, the unanimous support of a Christian people and numbering its martyrs by the hundred thousand—not blind zealots, not ignorant dupes, but an unequaled array of intellect, of culture, of patriotism, and of plety—is to lost? Lost it may be to human perception, but not lost to the All-seeing eye and righteous judgment of Him who rules the nations.

You ask, if the union is simply reinstated, what has been the gain of the war? Troublesome issues, lost to the All-seeing eye and righteous judgment of Him who rules the nations.

You ask, if the union is simply reinstated, what has been the gain of the war? Troublesome issues, questious affecting the very life of the government have been buried beyond resurrection, liberty is dear to us because of her baptism of fire and blood, and the union more sacred to the northern heart because of the sacrifices made by the people to sustain it. So that Webster's sublime apocalypse is actually verified: "Not liberty first and union, now and forever, one and inseparaple." The north saved the union, the south preserved liberty, and has shown the powers of a manly race. And both, reunited in bonds indissoluble, felicitate themselves that the "winter is past, the rain over and gone, the memorial flowers appear on the earth, the time of the singing of the birds is come, and the voice of the turtle is heard in our land." And entering into the fruitfulness of an undivided inheritance each exclaims: The fig tree putteth borth her green into the fruitfulness of an undivided inheritunce each exclaims: The fig tree putteth forth her green figs, and the vines with the tender grape give a good smell. Without any formal demonstration, memorial day in Augusta is universally and appropriately observed. The day is a legal holiday and banking and business circles are quiet, the afternoon being celebrated by the closing of all houses. The ladies of the Memorial association and the public generally are wending their way to the cemetery, and quietly decorating the graves in the confederate sol-diers' section. The military of the city are out, and will informally honor their fallen companions by a visit to the cemetery this afternoon. They will salute at one time the graves of their comrades and the floral wealth offered as a tribute by the fair women of our southland.

The annual meeting of the confederate surivors was the only formal celebration of the ay. Colonel Charles C. Jones, Jr., president day. Colonel Charles C. Indeed, since then only one or two mills in Germany surpass the Confederate powder works in extent, and none in the quality of powder manufactured. The total ost of this immense work was not more than lars to the confederate government. They produced 2,750,000 pounds of powder in one year. They were erected in Augusta be-cause all conditions for εrection and loca-tion were most favorable at this point, the general planning and direction being the work of Colonel G. W. Rains, the engi-neering work resulting from the skill of C. Shaler Smith, of Richmond, and the superintendence and mechanical department being under direction of Mr. William Pendleton. The entire works were built by Messrs. Denning & Bowe, Mr. Denning having charge of work. The history of the mills given by Mr. Rains makes one of the most valuable contributions to the general history of the

All business was suspended throughout the city in the afternoon, mer-chants, employes and citizens generally as-sembling at the cemetery to pay their tribute of reverence and affection to the heroic dead. The Second Georgia battalion, Lieutenant Colonel C. M. Wiley commanding, attended the exercises at the cemetery in a body. The following companies were in line: Macon Volunteers, Captain W. W. Carnes, 34 men, rank and file; Georgia Cadets, Captain George Findlay, 37 men; Floyd Riffles, Captain J. L. Hardeman, 25 men. Each company had its drum corps. The Macon volunteers' band headed the procession and played finely. The exercises were held at the stand by the soldiers' graves and commenced at 4 o'clock, with prayer by the Rey. Dr. E. W. Warren. Captain J. L. Hardeman very gracefully introduced the orator of the occasion. Chaplein, Chaples, Language the Meson. ion, Chaplain Charles Lane, of the Macon volunteers. The address of Mr. Lane was timely and excellently delivered, and was most favorably received by the large audience It was a lovely tribute to the brave and honored dead. After the benediction by Rev. Dr. J. S. Key, the graves were decorated with beautiful flowers. We were pleased to note the general excellent condition of the graves, many of them having been made objects of especial care by certain ladies, and had re-ceived most loving attention. One of the most beautiful decorations of the occasion an exquisite cross large proportions, which stood at the head of the graves. It was made of hanging moss and flowers and was the loving work of Mrs. Madison Jones. It received the admiration of all who beheld it. After the decoration the Second Georgia battalion drew up in line and fired three volleys over the graves, after which the large assemblage of citizens dispersed, leaving the sleeping warriors with their covering of flowers to the watch of heaven. The Second Georgia battalion on retiring to the city paraded the streets awhile and fired a volley over the confederate monument, which had been beautifully decorated with flowers, while here and there floated a arge proportions, which stood at the head ment, which had been beautifully decorated with flowers, while here and there floated a flag or the picture of some confederate chieftain could be seen resting amid the flowers. The contribution boxes placed at the monument and cemetery were liberally patronized, and quite a sum was collected for placing head-stones on the graves of the confederate dead in Rose Hill.

IN ROME.

From the Rome Courier.
Yesterday being the legally appointed day for memorial services over the graves of our fallen confederate dead, the exact programme of which could not be carried out, on account of circumstances over which the ladies of the Memorial association had no control, and notwithstanding the drawback upon the an ticipated services occasioned by a notice in yesterday's Courier that the services would be costponed until the 10th of May, the good adies of the association, with their deter mined zeal and patriotism, went forward in the prosecution of their duties, and we are very much gratified to report that the services were as imposing and impressive as on other

It is true there was no bombastic or fulsome adulation of country or of the dead heroes of the late war pronounced by an eulo-gistic orator for the occasion, but there was the quiet and silent there was the quiet and silent eloquence of woman's devotion and heartfel sympathy, in the placing with her tender, loving hands, the roses and the lilies upon the last resting places of the husbands, fathers, sons and brothers of loved ones far away.

While the distribution of flowers upon the grave was going on, the colored band of the city discoursed in sweetest music, "The Sweet By and By," and other appropriate music, and when the work had ended, the band gave us "Home, Sweet Home," after which the young ladies of the Rome female and Shorter colleges sang, in most entrancing strains, the beautiful and inspiring "Over There."

Taking everything into the account, we cheerfully agree with the but one sentiment we heard expressed, that it was as great a success as any services ever held there upon any Thirty Thousand Dollars Changing Ilands in the Legislature at the Card Table. Special Dispatch to the Louisville Commercial. Special Dispatch to the Louisville Commercial.

Frankfort, April 26.—Poker playing in Frankfort has increased wonderfully in the last week or two. Everybody wants to catch even, and games go on in private rooms in which the musical click of the ivories were never before heard. The games are larger, too, than they were. Nearly everybody plays and it is sometimes amusing to watch the expression on a solid, staid, old member's face as he sees opposite him a man whom he never dreamed of meeting in such a place. Games are played everywhere in private houses, in hotels, in regular gambling rooms. All kinds of games are played. There are twenty-five cent games, where a few old chaps sit around the table all night and tell stories between the deals, risking just enough stories between the deals, risking just enough to keep them awake. Another very popular game is ten cent ante and two dollars limit. This is a snare and a delusion, however, as the small amount of the "limit" would seem the small amount of the "limit" would seem to indicate that not very much could be lost, when in reality $100 can very easily change hands during a sitting.

In the regular poker rooms there is generally no limit, and here the big winning or losing is made. A game was played during the late convention at which a well known Louisgille gentleman won $1.000 and three cold. late convention at which a well known Louis-ville gentleman won $1,900 and three gold watches. He showed me one of the gold watches a few days ago, and the name on the inside might create a flutter if published.

A THIRTY-SIX HOUR GAME.

Last Tuesday riight, at 7:30 o'clock, five gen-tlemen, three of whom were legislators, sat down to the time-honored round table and began to play. Time flew by so rapidly that began to play. Time flew by so rapidly that at 2 o'clock they all agreed they had better play a little longer. It was a big game, "$5 call $25" and table stakes. Aces were worth $100 and two pair anything under $500. Hour after hour passed, and the cold, dull daylight began to peep in at them through the light began to peep in at them through the closed shutters, and still they played. One member was $2,800 behind at 5 o'clock and another $1,500 behind. Breakfast was oradered. They gulped it down and again with pa'e, haggard faces they sat about the table. Twelve o'clock, high noon, and they were still at it. The air in the room was stifling, but they cared not for that. It was a beautiful day without, the air balmy and warm, but the frightful fascination of the game kept them there in the close room under the poisonous gas jets, necessary because game kept them there in the close room under the poisonous gas jets, necessary because the windows must be kept closed, turning the cards and betting the chips. Six o'clock came and one of the prrty was gone, utterly broken down. He left $2,000 in the hands of the Philistunes and staggered off to bed. At 8 o'clock there were only three of the party left, with faces as white as ashes and nerves all shuttered by disks and the article society. all shattered by drinks and the awful excite-ment of the game. Just at two o'clock Thurs-day morning the three men separated, after thirty-six hours of incessant play, and $3.600 had been won and lost. One of the men was sick for two days, another has not recovered yet. It was a terrible experience for all of them.

THE "TRICKS" OF THE GAME.

A very ridiculous story is told of a certair. member who does not live a thousand miles from Louisville. He was playing with a little party, and opened a "jack-pot" for $2. Everybody stayed out except one man. The member drew two cards to three tens, and falled to better his haud.

member drew two cards to three tens, and failed to better his haud.

The other "stood pat." The member made a small bet and the other raised him $10. The member threw down his cards and then his opponent laid down his "pat" hand, and, to the inexpressible disgust of the member, it hadn't even a pair in it. "Sir," said he, "I will play in no game in which such trickery is resorted to. Take your ill-gotten wealth." And he strode out.

trickery is resorted to. Take your ill-gotter wealth." And he strode out. Of course somebody must win. A member of the lower house is said to have won $1,500 this session. The sharks have had a fine time this winter, for there are any amount of little fishes here. Men have been here all winter The sharks have had a fine time with no ostensible occupation, and they all pack money away with them. It is a very low estimate to say that at least $30,000 has been won and lost this session.

IS SHE DEAD?

Curious Case of Probable Suspended Animation From the Cincinnati Times-Star.

Our sister city of Newport furnises a most remarkable case of suspended animation, in which a young lady was taken suddenly ill Sunday night, and a few moments later she ceased to breathe, and from all appearances life was extinct.

The name of the young lady is Roselia Ros-leucher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Rosleucher, a respected German family living on Isabella street, between McArthur and on Isabella street, between McArthur and Locust streets, in that city. Roselia is a young lady of about eighteen years, of slender build and quite prepossessing appearance. She had been complaining for some time past of a headache, and Sunday last, although about all day and in her usual pleasant mood, she complained during the afternoon of her head being worse, but not of such a nature as head being worse, but not of such a nature as to cause the least alarm until about 11 o'clock that night, when she was suddenly attacked with cramps, and a physician was immediately summoned, but from all appearances life was extinct before his arrival. The family were thrown into the deepest grief at the loss of their beloved daughter, the idol of the household and the neighbors soon collected and their beloved daughter, the idol of the house-hold, and the neighbors soon collected and offered their assistance, preparing a shroud and other articles usually placed on the dead. The following day Mr. Betz, the undertaker, was notified to arrange for the funeral, and during that day furnished a coffin, which the remains were placed in.

The petition is signed by Orrin W. Dunn, John R. Powell, G. W. Warren, John Owens, Robert Davis, C. C. Olin, John Doricsh, Andrew Olson, Owen M. Goss, P. T. Fitzgerald Geo. Boyd and Frank Burk, and is as follows:

To the honorable Senate and House of Representatives in Congress assembled: Your undersigned petitioners, working men, legal voters and American and native born citizens of Irish descent, would respectfully request and recommend that your bodies appoint a commission to negotiate for the abrogation or essential modification of the treaty of the kingdom of Great Britain so as to prohibit or greatly reduce the importation or immigration of Irishmen to this country for the following reasons: Because such immigration compels us to put our labor in competition with the pauper labor of ireland. Because it fills our prisons and almshouses with men to be supported at our expense. Because it fills the country with a foreign element that can never, to any extent, be assimilated or Americanized, for the reason that they owe their most sacred allegiance to a foreign pope, whose interests and ideas of human government are antagonistic to the fundamental principles of our constitution. Because by our laws they are made competent jurors and ideas of numan government are antagonistic to the fundamental principles of our constitution. Because by our laws they are made competent jurors and witnesses in our courts, while they are bound, by the most sacred obligations, to regard the interests of the church and priesthood above other interests, even to the violation of their oaths. Because they are drunken and riotous. Therefore we rejectfully request that you make all laws that may be passed in relation to the importation or immigration of Chinese, apply with equal effect to the importation or immigration of Irishmen.

State of Georgia, Fulton County. To the Superior Court of Said County

THE PETITION OF THOMAS G.HEALEY, J. S. Wise, William Markham, LeviCohen, A. C. Wyly, Authony Murphy, Daniel Pittman and others, respectfully shows that they desire to be chartered under an order of this honorable court, encorporating them and their assigns and successors, as a body corporate, under the name and style of the "Allanta Cereal and Lard Oil Company," for the purpose of manufacturing and reining oil out of cotton seed and other cereals and lard. To do any and all things usual and necessary to be done in carrying on said business not in conflict with the constitution and laws of this state or of the United States, with power to sue and be sued, to use a seal, to hold real estate and other property necessary for the purpose of said company and to sell the same when necessary. Their principal office to be in Atlanta, Fulton county, Georgia, and the capital to be employed is to be one hundred and fifty thousand dollars actually paid in as needed on such sums theron as may be necessary. They desire to be incorporated for the term of twenty years with privilege of renewal and with such other powers as are incident to corporations of like character under the laws of this state.

PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER.

A Never-Failing Cure for Burns, Scalds, Bruises, Cuts, Sores, etc. After forty years of trial, Prancy Davis' Pain Killers stands unrivaled. It is safe! It acts immediately! It never fails!

Editor of the St. John (N.B.) News, says:
In flesh wounds, aches, pains, sores, etc., it is the most efectual remedy we know of.
No family should be without a bottle of it
It gave me immediate relief. for a single hour.

Prom the Cincinnati Dispatch:

E. Lewis says: Inforty years' use it never has falled ma.

From the Cincinnati Dispatch:

We have seen its magic effects, and know it to be a good article.

From I. S. Potter, U. S. Consul at Crefold, Rhenish Prussia:

After long years of use, I am satisfied it is positively efficient as a healing remedy for wounds, bruises, and sprains.

PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER is not a new untried remedy. For forty years it has been in constant use; and those who have used it the longust are its best friends.

Its success is entirely because of its merit. Every family should have a bottle ready for use. Much pain and heavy doctors bills may citen be saved by prompt application of the Pain Killer. Unlike most medicines, it is perfectly safe even in the hands of a child. Try it cance thoroughly, and it will prove its value. Your druggist has it at 255c., 50c., and $1.00 once thoroughly, and it will prove its value. Your druggist has it at 25e., 50e., and $1.0 per bottle. PERRY DAVIS & SON, Proprietors, Providence, R. for every child in the public schools.

BOTH in the house and in the senate the party lash is heard to crack. The Chalmers Lynch contest, and the discussion over th removal of political disabilities from Dr. A. Sidney Tiffs, an ex-confederate, all show that a bitter animus against the south greater than since the Fraud Haves took Mr. Tilden's seat, is decidedly on the Ar last Georgia knows how much her rivers and harbors are to have. Two hundred thonsand dollars for Savannah is very little, while $83,000 for the Coosa is very much, in comparison, especially when the upper Chattahoochee gets nothing; and to the lower river only $20,000. But in view of the general and strong assault on the appropriation of the northern rivers and harbors, Georgia is fortunate in getting what she has.

EMERSON, the greatest author, both as think er and writer, that America has produced, is dead. As Carlyle has produced the greatest impression on latter day Englishmen, so the minted gold of Emerson's crisp and weighty sentences have become current among men who think in the United States. No man has been more the representative of the American thought and tendency of to-day. What Goethe was to the Germany of the forties that is Emerson to Americans of the eighties He has left a deep and indelible mark and an imperishable name.

Our Washington correspondent makes ar important announcement to-day. Some time ago, on Mr. Stephens' authority, we made the announcement that he had determined to retire from politics. As Mr. Stephens says of the announcement which we then made, it was nation, he is not fit to represent a democratic his sincere purpose to carry it out; but he has now yielded to pressure, and after deliberation he answers the questions propounded to him by our correspondent some days ago, by saying that he will enter the gubernatorial canvass if the wish is general for him to do so. In other words, Mr. Stephens is in the race for governor.

THE SMALL POY ABATING

For the past three days there has not been a single new case of small-pox. The present cases are safely quarantined and their effects have been destroyed. It is the general opinion that the disease is perfectly under control and that we shall have little more trouble with it.

This desirable state of affairs has been brought about, in the first place, by the promptness with which the city authorities segregated every new case, and the thoroughness with which the material for the disease to spread on has been removed by vaccination. It is established beyond dispute that every man properly vaccinated cannot from small-pox. It is just the same, as far as the spread of the disease is concerned, as if he had moved out of the city. It is estimated that eight out of every ten citizens are properly vaccinated. We stand virtually toward the small-pox, therefore, just as if 40.000 of our 50,000 people had left the city that and the remaining 10,000 were separated from each other by the presence of the absentees. We are doubtful if there are two people out of every ten in the city not vaccinated. The disease had seized on twelve victims, each one being in different neighborhoods. And yet only twenty people have become infected. The slowness of this "spread" is positive proof that most of the material about each case was protected.

Now a word to our citizens. We have all experienced the depressing effects of even a small-pox scare. We know that if it becomes an epidemic we would suffer terribly. There is reason to hope that we have confined the disease to its present narrow limits. This has been done by vaccination. If we can hold it there we will soon recover from the effects of Georgia are decked, and it is doubtful if there the depression. We can only control it by is any man in the state whose pond was fairly that preventive we must make thorough. Let | be without it for ten times its cost. CIRCUMVENTING THE ROTATION SYS-TEM.

It has been given out, high and low, far and near, that the Hon. Ben. C. Duggar was in training as an independent candidate for congress from the Ninth district-a sort of tiedout independent republican war-horse, as it were, and we have been figuring some upon the probable results of a triangular race between the democratic candidate, name unknown, and Dr. Duggar and Mr. Speer. But our politics are not to be enlivened to this The coalition, or the syndicate, has probably taken the trouble to cause the wor- the organ of the coalition. doctor to be seen, and now, we learn, he has declined to be either a candidate for congress or a tied-out formed by Minister Lowell, in pursuance of in-

It should not be inferred, however, that the

has lost all ambition. On e proposes to give his services ents and to the people of the state of the sunny south. To be brief, will stand for re-election to the state senate from the 41st district. It would seem that there would be some objection to this on the part of other counties, Dr. Duggar having represented that particular district for quite a number of years. In order to meet this obection and to fulfil all the requirements of he rotation system, the worthy doctor has emoved from Fannin to Gilmer in order that the last named county shall have the privilege of electing the senator. When the clamor for rotation again makes itself felt, it will be an easy matter for this able man to remove to Pickens, and this, no doubt, he is prepared

BELMONT AND BLAINE.

All accounts agree that the cross-examination of Mr. Blaine by Mr. Perry Belmont is the most interesting and exciting episode connected with the Shipherd investigation Mr. Belmont is said to be a democrat, inheriting his politics, doubtless, from his father. who was at one time indifferently connected with the democratic organization as chairman of the national committee, and Mr. Blaine is undoubtedly a republican; but this difference of opinion is very far from explaining the re markable heat and fury displayed by Belmont His attitude, indeed, is unaccountable, unless as Mr. Blaine suggested, he is carrying out the ulterior designs of persons who are behind

Why Belmont should misquote Blaine, and stick to it, and grow furious about it is a mystery, unless such displays are habitual to those who move in the society of metropolitan hostlers and polo clubs and things. Bel mont certainly owed it to the democratic party, which he is supposed to represent, to deal fairly and keep his temper. As matters stand, no democratic representative has any thing to gain by breaking down Mr. Blaine for whatever breaks down the leader of the Garfield republicans strengthens the political neirs of Guiteau, and confirms them in thei ourpose to destroy the democratic party in he south by fair means or foul.

As between the stalwart wretches who are eager to renew republican oppression in the outh and Mr. Blaine, we are frank to say that our sympathies are with the latter. We realize the nature and extent of the attack upon him as the leader of the Garfield repubicans, and we regard the whole of this Shiperd business as the result of a conspiracy se on foot by the unscrupulous faction which i defending the star-routers and setting on foot a programme to oust democratic members of ngress from their seats. It should be borne in mind, moreover, that in nearly every instance that has been brought to light, the foreign policy of the Garfield administration was such as would have been promulgated by a democratic secretary of state, and was in stric onformity with democratic traditions. If Mr. Perry Belmont is ignorant of these things -if he is ignorant of the relations which all the stalwart attacks upon Mr. Blaine bear to the intention of that faction to possess the government even at the hazard of assassi constituency. If he is influenced in his remarkable antics by any motive not based or gnorance, his unfitness is of another sort Inder the circumstances, Mr. Belmont has placed himself in the unenviable position of grossly misrepresenting Mr. Blaine in a manner not liable to deceive anybody or to accomplish any good. Three years ago there was probably not one hundred fish ponds in Georgia. There are now over twenty-five hundred. These ponds are for the main part stocked with carp. The carp movement was started in Georgia by The Constitution, under the guidance and encouragement of Professor Baird and Dr. Cary. They advised us that there was in it a great and profitable industry. Upon investigation we thought it promised well, and we gave the public the suggestions and figures at at our disposal. bas been fairly demonstrated we were right. The carp flourishes in Georgia waters beyond expecta tion. In hundreds of ponds the young fish have at the end of the year averaged four to five pounds in weight and some few have been found to weigh over seven pounds. A half dozen pair have been found sufficient to stock a two acre pond to the swarming point in three years. Besides being prolific and hardy the carp is a fine table fish. It is of good flavor and fiber and really surpasses the public estimate, which was based on the idea that so fast a grower must be coarse grained. There is no prettier or more profitable thing on the farm than a well-kept fish pond. Our correspondents have drawn some ravishing pictures of the beauties of the artificial lakes with which so many rural homes in vaccination. THE PHANTOM CITY lleged Discovery of a Mystery of Central America From the Baltimore Sun.

It is well known to most readers of newspaper that an expedition, gotten up under the combined suspices of the French government and Mr. Lorillard, of New York, has been traveling for more than a year past in Mexico and the Central American states examining the ruined cities of the an ient races inhabiting that region before the Span ish conquest. The stories told by Stephens, Bras eur de Bourbourg and Dr. Le Plongeon of the re markable edifices covered with symbolical figures and strange ornamention hidden away in thick for ests read like a tale of an enchanted land. M Charnay, the head of the present expedition, has visited already many of these grand ruins, and has ransmitted papers concerning them, with photographic illustrations of idols and ornaments and fragments of sculpture, as contributions to the North American Review. Interesting as these papers and pictures are, they thrown very little light upon the manners, customs and polity of the peoples who built and inhabited these dead cities. We know that they were well advanced in cities. We know that they were well advanced civilization and in some of the arts at the time the arrival of the Spaniards. We know, too, t some of the ruined eities which now excite wonder and admrtation of adventurous exploi were then populated with the race that built the Beyond this the veil of mystery that hangs of them has never been lifted. Even the age of the cities has been matter of the wildest conjectum. de Bourbourg makes them existent before flood. Dr. de Plongeon believed that some of the were seventeen thousand years old. Mr. Stephwisely confined himself to descriptions of the And now M. Charjan, keering, well within wisely confined himself to descriptions of them whisely confined himself to descriptions of them And now, M. Charnay, keeping well within the lomain of the probable, does not carry the oldes them back beyond the eleventh contury, while holds that many of them are of much later ori e holds that many of them are of much later or in. But who the people were, whence they came, he tongue they spoke, and the meaning of the minbolical sculptures so wonderfully chiseled on heir public buildings, we know as little as of the uilders of the Pueblos and rock dwellings in Jew exico, or of the mound-builders of the Uhio and ississippi. There was a strange weird story told to Mr. Ste phens by a priest in Guatemala, and traditiona mang the people there, that when a young man and while living in the village of Chajul, he him leff "had climed to the summit of a bare and loft beak of the neighboring sterra, and had then, at a leight of ten thousand or twelve thousand feet ooked over an immense plain, extending to Yuca oked over an immense plain, extending to Yuca-n and the gulf of Mexico, in the midst of which, a great distance, he saw a large city spread over considerable space, with turrets white and glis-ning in the sun."

ecording to others, this great inhabited city was cupied by a fierce inde kept themselves isolated for many generations from all contact with white people, and who perpetuated the traditions, manners, customs, and mode of life of the ancient Mayarace, from whence they speans. So jealous were they of being intruded on that Mr. Stephens, who believed in the truth of the story, thought that to explore the city would require an armed force of 500 men to overcome the resistance they would meet with. Most persons have doubted the existence of any such city, and many more, assuming the fact of the city itself, were incredulous in respect to its inhabitants. And now, spect to its inhabitants. And now, the news comes to us that the priest's story was not all a myth; for that M. Chamnay, while exploring the northwestern part of Guatemala, has discovered "the phantom city" alleged to have been seen from afar by the Guatemalan priest. The editor of the North American Review, with whom M. Charnay is in constant correspondence, vouches for it. But, beyond the mere fact that the city has been found, he is as yet discreetly silent. If he knows anything more he prefers, probably, to leave all details to conjecture until the Review publishes M. Charnay's paper on' the subject. As the intrepid Frenchman has never yet met in his explorations any but the ruins of dead cities in the midst of dense forests and almost covered up with thorny plants and tangled vines and low-lying shrubs, his discovery of a city populated by the descendants of the old Maya race would be something approaching the marvelous. His account of his great "find" will be looked forward to with unusual interest, in the hope of his throwing some additional light ou the founders of these mysterious cities, and on the people who inhabited them. the news comes to us that the priest's story was not

SUN STORMS AND AURORAS.

From the New York Sun. The great sun spot which was visible a few days ago without telescope, and which there is strong reason to believe was connected with the splendid auroras and great magnetic disturbance last week, is now nearing the western edge of the sun, where, through the effect of forest ing it is no longer visible without optical aid. In the telescope it is still a wonderful object.

Reports from observatories in various parts of the country showed that it has been noticed and closely studied by the astronomers. On the 16th instant, when it was approaching the centre of the disk. xhibited the greatest disturbance. A portion of the sun's surface more than a thousand quare miles in extent was heaving and whirling and tossing under the tremendous forces at work Chasms, some of which by measurement were several thousand miles across, yawned within this area, their jagged and shining edges and deep purple abysses showing splendidly even in smal scopes. Bright tongues projected from the sides over the central chasms, and in some places narro bridges of snowy whiteness crossed them. These holes were of every conceivable size and shape, and around them all was the vast penumbral shade, resting like a veil upon the face of the sun, and inlicating to the trained observer the limits and extent of the great depressed area in which the still deeper chasms were formed.

All the minor features of the great spot were continually changing. An hour's watching revealed changes which, though slight compared with the wast extent of the spot alght compared with the vast extent of the spot alght compared with the wast extent of the spot alght compared marvelous when a little figuring showed the rapidity of the motions that were taking place.

The evening of the 16th was clear, and the sun could be watched till it touched the horizon. The tremendous disturbances that had revealed themselves during the afternoon continued at sunset. The astronomers put up their telescope to wait for the morning, when the study of the great spot could be renewed; but hardly had the twilight faded before in the north, in the direction of one of the earth's magnetic poles, a pale green light began to glow, and presently an arch was formed, and then the mysterious currains of the aurora were silently swayed and shaken in the heavens.

At the same time the telegraph lines and the Atlantic cable were crippled, and the magnetic need the showed the greatest excitement. The effects of All the minor feature s of the great spot were con and it was responding to the magnetic ununicated from the sun.

The great spot continued during the week to show signs of intense activity, and almost every night the auroral streamers were shaken in the north, although the first display of Sunday night was unequalled by any that followed. That the magnetic disturbance did not cease so long as the auroral those whose business suffered through de-lasted, those whose business suffered throug ays in the telegraph know too well. At first sight it seems a startling proposition useert that the sun has in its power thus to fere with the workings of the Atlantic cable fere with the workings of the Atlantic cable, and to interrupt to no slight extent the correspondence and business between two continents. Nothing that the ancient fable makers related of Phoebus and his car of Day was more wonderful than this. It would be yet more startling, however, if those who believe that the tornadoes and other atmospheric disturbances, which have made this month of April remarkable in meteorological annals are also due to the disturbances in the sun, could establish their theories as scientific facts.

The power of the sun is only just beginning to be appreciated, even by men of science, and it is impossible to predict where the study that is now being concentrated upon this subject will end.

Robeson put himself second on the appropriation committee, second on naval affairs, and first on the expenditures of the navy department, thus guarding the points of his infamous career in the past, and of his projected jobbery for the future. He excluded Mr. Whitthorne and the men who had exposed his venality in the navy department from every place of importance. He fied their hands in shaping legislation, but he could not shut their mouths in the house. The moral influence of the Whitthorne report six years ago stalked through the hall like a ghost to terrify the revellers, when Robeson's job for constructing new ships was tried by Harris, chairman of naval affairs.

With full knowledge of his antecedents, the republicans made this notorious corruptionist chairman of the caucus, and now they have put him at the head of a select committee to determine the order of business, and to select the measures that the

The republican party cannot escape the responsibility of having conferred these honors knowingly and of having placed Robeson in a position to speak for the party and for the administration in the honse. Yet, with all these advantages the proposed projects of plunder which the Robeson ring has matured will have a hard road to travel, because members have more care for their personal interests at home, with congressional elections staring them in the face this fall, than they have for this jobbing leader. Bees as a Nulsance. From La Nature.

At the instance of the Conseil d'Hygiene, for the department of the Seine, M. Delpech has drawn up an instructive report on the dangers arising from bees. The loss and inconvenience incurred by some sugar refineries in Paris through bee-keepers' establishments in the neighborhood attracted notice sometime ago: at the Lay refinery the depredation is estimated at 25,000 francs a year, and the workmen, nearly naked, are often stung. The children (1,200) at a school in the Rue de Tanger have suffered similarly to a large extent. M. Delpech gives information with regard to the bees' sting, notices three classes of injuries caused by it, and cites a number of cases in which it has proved fatal. Stings on the face are the most serious, the nerve centers being so near. Bees are evidently not to be trifled with. On the triple score of material damage, great inconvenience; and very real danger. M. Delpech condemns bee-keeping in large centers of population. From La Nature.

New York, April 27.—A more peculiar craft than the Brainerd Sumner has propably never appeared in New York harbor. She arrived recently from Rockland, Me., and is tied up at the foot of West Thirteenth street. From a short distance she resembles an ordinary large three-masted schooner. full rigged and with all three topmasts on end. A closer inspection shows that the mizzenmast is painted black, while the foremast and mainmast are slushed and scraped down in the ordinary way. It is necessary to board this queer craft to accertain that the third mast is really a tall smoke stack of fron, similar in shape to the two other masts. It has a topmast like the others, and a foremast it has a topmast like the others, and a foremast. It has a topmast like the others, and a foremast. It has a topmast like the others, and a foremast. The engine and boiler are in the extreme afterpart of the vessel. The furnace and boiler are athwartships, and the engine is an upright propeller of the ordinary type. The steam power is intended as an auxiliary, but she has made seven knots an hour under steam alone. She was built in Rockland a short time ago, and is the first vessel of the kind ever constructed. She is about 690 or 700 tons custom house measure ment. The mine wat not sold, but was excavated until it was found that the ore was inexhaustible. A sufficient qu nitiy was carried to the Pennsylvania Iron and Steel works at durisburg, and the analysis shows that this ore is equal to the best steel ore now mined near Lake Superior. With this great quantity of freight within twelve miles of its main line, and needing only an outlet, the Richmond and Danville company commenced the construction of a branch road, which has just been complayed to the mine, and ends at Chapel Hill. A daily train has been put on to this place, and freight cars, as fast as they can be loaded, are transported over the Richmond and Danville line to Harrisburg. The Pennsylvania Iron and Steel company has engaged all the ore from this mine, and is using it in the manufacture of steel.

Death of a Veterar TORONTO, April 27.—Argus McDouald, aged 105, died the other day at Uxbridge. He enlisted in 1803 in the Royal artillery and served on the Peninsula under Sir John Moore and the duke of Wellington. His most vivid recollections of the past were in connection with the decisive battle of Waterloo. He leaves a progeny extending through four generations.

Growth of Paganism in the Dominio OTTAWA, April 27.—The religious statistics of the dominion show that but three of the sects show a diminution of adherents within the past decade—the Quakers, Unitarians and Universalist. The pagans can boast of the largest proportionate increase, the number being increased from 1,886 in 1871 to 4475 in 1887.

As minutes into hours grow,
And years build up on days;
As streamlets into rivers flow,
Conjoining on their ways;
So grows the faith my nature feels
Into a perfect trust;
So run the thoughts no guile conceals, Resistless, as they must.

With Faith a fixed and certain star, Which floods its lambent light Until all other feelings are
But shadows in its night;
And Trust a perfect resting place
Whereon the soul may lean,
No higher sense of living grace
Could in its place be seen.

For five years after graduation he assisted his elder brother William in a school kept by the latter at Boston. In 1826 he was licensed to preach as a Unitarian minister, and in 1829 he was ordained colleague of the Rev. Henry Ware, jr., pastor of the Second Unitarian church of Boston. He held this place only three years, for he had come to doubt the propriety of administering the Lord's supper, doubting that it was intended to be a permanent resignation, but with regret.

LYCEUM LECTURER.

From this time his clerical career was ended. He to find all but really conservative Unitarians looking to him with reverence.

In 1836 had published a little volume called Nature. It did not attract much notice at the time but as he grew famous attention was recalled to it. In 1840 he joined Thoreau, Charles A. Dana, Margaret Fuller, A. Bronson Alcott, Theodore Parker, George Ripley, and others in the publication of the Dial, at transcendental quarterly. the sublimest of which seemed moonshine to the matter of fact public, but to its admirers it appeared the perfection of wisdom and originality. Looking back at it from the brighter light of to-day, we can better appreciate its real merits and discriminate between profundity and its counterfeit than could its contemporaries. Every generation had its fashion, and transcendentalism was the fashion of the Emersonian era, 1840-60. Man's inner light, and the oversoul which grasped mysteries as readily as a squirrel does a nut, were to light up the darkness that had enveloped men's pathway, and a new period was begun. Old fashioned beliefs still survive, while hard, materialistic science has usurped the sity theories of transcendents lism, and carried the majority of its disciples along. Yet it included much that was noble and lofty. It taught men to look behind mere facts to the principles that occasioned their manifesta tone, and served a useful purpose, though it did not take humanity conjugate.

Mathod of Nature.

In 1841-44 were published Emerson's Method of Nature, the clearest expression of his principles, and two volumes of essays. In 1846 he appeared as a poet, puzzling rather than gratifying all but the initiated by the quaint obscurity of his utterances. In 1847 he visited England a second time. He was now famous, was warmly received, and lectured to general admiration. His Miscellanies, 1849, and Essays on Representative Men, 1850, were his next publications. They were both highly successful. His English Traits, 1856, and his Conduct of Life, 1860, rank among his best productions. His poem of Brahma, contributed to an early number of the Atlantic Monthly, was the subject of innumerable parodies and excited more general attention than any poem of the same length ever did before or has since. It reads as follows:

BRAHMA. "If the red slayer think he slays, Or if the slain think he is slain, They know not well the winding ways I keep, and pass, and turn again.

"Far or forgot to me is near; Shadow and sunlight are the same; The vanished gods to me appear; And one to me are shame and fame:

"They reckon ill who leave me out; When me they fly, I am the wings; I am the doubter and the doubt, And I the hymn the Brahmin sings. "The strong gods pine for my abode, And pine in vain the sacred seven; But thou, meek lover of the good. Find me, and turn thy back on heaven."

But thou, meek lover of the good.
Find me, and turn thy back on heaven."

In 1867 he published a second collection of poems; in 1869-70, Society and Solitude and his complete prose works. In 1875 he put forth four series of easays. In 1875 he contributed to the North American Review a paper on the Sovereignty of Ethics, written some years previously, we believe, and in 1879 delivered an address on The Preacher in the Cambridge Divinity chapel. It was afterward published in the Unitarian Review.

Religiously, Emerson was thought to incline to pantheism in his early literary life. One of the most criticised sentences in his address of 1838 was the statement: "The assumption that the age of inspiration is past, that the Bible is closed, the fear of degrading the character of Jesus by representing Him as a man, indicate with sufficient clearness the falsehood of our theology." In his closing Him as a man, indicate with sufficient clearness the falsehood of our theology." In his closing Him as a man, indicate with sufficient clearness the falsehood of our theology." the Prosecuting Attorne, The Last Scenes of Jennie's Life Portrayed—The Stience of Death Resorted to—The Evidence.

NEW YORK, April 27 .- The Times' New Haven, Connecticut, special says: The introduction of evidence in the trial of the Malley boys and Blanche Douglass commenced to day. Before calling the first witness the State's-Attorney Doolittle addressed the jury, saying he proposed to make a brief outline of what the state expected to prove. He said: On the 6th day of August last, the dead body of Jennie Cramer was found on the shore at Savin Rock, near the Hill homestead. It was partly submerged in the water, and no one was in sight. We expect to show that her death was not produced by drowning. There were none of the evidences to show death by this cause. There was none of that foam about the mouth that was to have been expected. She was lying upon her back and her hands were crossed. No water came from her body. We shall claim that her death was caused by the arsenic found in her body, that had been recently administered. Life was extinct when the body touched the water. James Maliey, Walter Malley and Blanche Douglass had formed a conspiracy to ruin the girl. Walter Malley had a mistress in Blanche girl. Walter Malley had a mistress in Blanche Douglass, who was an inmate of a New York house of ill-fame. Walter brought her here, and she stopped at some of the hotels of the city. James Malley came to know her, and Jennie Cramer's confidence was gained. Walter introducing Blanche to the dead girl as his cousin—a lady of respectability, who had come here on a visit. They persuaded her, on Wednesday evening preceding her death, to go to the house of Edward Malley, a beautiful place on the outskirts of the city. Mr Malley was absent at the time. That night Jennie was ruined. The next morning at 11 o'clock she went with Blance Douglass to her clock she went with Blance Douglass to her o'clock she went with Blance Douglass to her mother's house. Her mother upbraided her, and she said she had passed the night at a hotel with Blanche. They stayed there a short time, and her mother never saw her alive again. The prisoners have claimed they never saw her after Thursday noon, when they saw her in a horse-car, apparently going to Savin Rock. They found she had separated from ner vile associates, and were apprehensive she would disclose what had been done her. They feared she had started for New York to find her brother. With this idea Thursday afternoon, Walter started for New York, but at Stanford was stopped by a dispatch from James saying that "they were O. patch from James saying that "they were O. K." That afternoon Mrs. Cramer called upon James Malley to inquire after her daughter. Later in the day Jennie returned from the shore. The next night Jennie and James were walking together in the more quiet streets of the city. She was exposulating returned, and we think we can show they were all four at Savin Rock that night. They were seen together late on the shore. The Malleys did not want to have her take legal proceedings against them on account of what had transpired at the Malley house Wednes-day night. There was no froth; nothing but clear blood from her nose. The witness said: "I never saw a drowned body but what it would purge at the mouth with blood, froth and water. I at the mouth with 5100d, froth and water. I have seen them when you get a good deal of water from them. This has been my usual experience. The hands are not generally open. We find them grabbing something and shut. The eyes are not often closed as in this case, and the mouth is not closed up tight, but open a little. I should say, from my experience with other bodies, that she was my experience with other bodies, that she was dead before entering the water." Drs. Due Shepard and Henry W. Painter, both of West Haveo, testified that they reached the shore early on the morning of the finding of the body. Both described the dress of the dead girl and the general appearance of the body. The shoes were wet, but did not appear to have been soaked. From the mouth was a little trickling of blood, but no mucus or froth.

The face was a little darker than was natural. The principal wound was a cut in the lower lip an inch long in a lateral direction, and three-sixteenths of an inch deep. She was found on her face, the eyes were closed. There was no mucus in the mouth, or, as There was no mucus in the mouth, or, as shown by the autopsy water in the lungs or stomach. The body was floating when first seen, and the hands were crossed on the breast. All things led the doctors to think it was not a case of drowning. He said there are now nearly 2,000 Christian associations in all parts of the world. At the world's convention of the Young Men's Christian association, which met in London a few months ago, over which the venerable earl of Shaftsbury, K. G., presided, there were six hundred delegates coming from nearly every country in the world in attendance. A reception was given the delegates by the lord mayor of London in the Mansion house and such gentlemen as the Earl of Aberdeen, Sir John Kennaway, M. P., in Atlanta, presenting many matters of inter-est relative to the departments of the work and showing the variety of the work and the potency of the agenciess employed. He referred to the work of the association in the jail, at the hospital, benevolent home, the factories and at the hall. He also spoke of the future of the work.

work of the association, as observed by himself, and recommended the association to the cordial support of the citizens of Atlanta. He was followed by Mr. Sam Inman, who stated that from an intimate knowledge of the work of the association he was prepared to say that it should receive a hearty support, both morally and financially. He gave som interesting details of the work as seen by him

Judge Hillyer made a few remarks on his experience with the work of the association and guaranteed to it his active support. He urged the necessity of aiding the association in its work.

Mr. Markham spoke of the work in Atlanta.

He had visited the hall and seen the work inside. He was familiar with the methods and the character of the work, and he gave it his unqualified indorsement. He called upon those present to sustain the association, saying that it was a money-saving institution and worthy of their hearty co-operation.

Mr. W. R. Hammond pledged his sympathy and support to the association and enlarged upon the necessity of the work.

p-operation and support, morally and nancially. inancially.

Mr. J. C. Kimball and Captain Frey made short talks. Mr. White, on behalf of the association, thanked Mrs. Colquitt for her kindness in allowing the use of the mansion for the meeting. Mr. Lowry spoke for Mrs. Colquitt, saying that she was only too happy to have the meeting at her house.

The meeting was a most enjoyable one and

The meeting was a most enjoyable one and will result in great good. Mr. Cree leaves to-day for Spartanburg, S. C., to attend the meeting of the state association.

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

The board of education met in regular session last night at Superintendent Slaton's office. There were present Mr. Mayer, presiding, and Members Spalding, Moore, Hoyt Roach, Rawson, Kimball and Beatie.

Superintendent Slaton's report was read and ordered filed. The report was full of interesting facts relating to the Atlanta schools. In discussing the present condition of the schools, the report says:

"The attendance at the public schools, since last you met, has been full in the schools for the white children, not mere than a dozen having been withdrawn on account of fear of small-pox. The colored schools, however, have not ranked so high in attendance, quite a number of children having taken fright and withdrawn, we suppose to return so soon as the panic with the colored population subsides. No case of small-pox has occurred among the school children, nor in the family in which any child resides. On motion of the committee on sanitary affairs your body instructed the superintendent to permit a young lady to continue in the Girls' high school without being vaccinated, provided no small-pox cases were reported in the city. This action was taken at the earnest request of her parents and of her family physician, who gave divers reasons for the request. Without awafting action of this body, when several cases of small-pox were reported, i suspended from school the girl until she should present the regular certificate of vaccination. With the exception named, I have certificates of vaccination for every child in every public school in the city. The wisdom of your orders in regard to this matter has been fully demonstrated and the orders have been implicitly obeyed. The teachers and pupils have conducted themselves in a manner worthy of approval, and assisted largely to allay excitement in the city occasioned by the intrusion of the very unwelceme visitor.

The board, upon motion, after the reading of the report, indorsed the action of the superintendent in regard to the case of suspension mentioned therein.

The f

amounting to $4,350.68. The same committee submitted a reports estimating the expense of the public schools for the session of '82-3 at $52,491.47.

$52,491.47.
Upon motion Member Hoyt was requested to ascertain what amount of money the public schools can procure from the state this year for the purpose of building school houses.

The committee upon buildings submitted a report setting forth the facts that the Hayne street schoolhouse had been repaired, and that it could not be used for school purposes another year on account of the unsafe condition.

The necessity of grading the lot back of the Fair street school house was discussed. The subject was finally disposed of by requesting Member Beattie to bring the matter before

THE COTTON MARKET

CONSTITUTION OFFICE, Atlanta, April 27, 1882.

New York-The cotton market opened quiet a lower prices for the future months, but during the morning advanced under an improved feeling. At noon a firm tone was developed, the months having eached the highest quotations. The reaction that followed soon afterward was of such a nature as to produce dullness by the close with a general down ward tendency in the months. The market closed a shade above yesterday's closing figures. Spots appear firmer but stand without quotable change;

ATLANTA, GA., March 18, 1882.

SWIFT SPECIFIC CO.: Gents: I have suffered from Scrofula for about 17 years. The disease being mostly confined to my legs and ankles, my shin bones were covered with LARGE ULCERS AND ONE MASS OF ROTTEN FLESH, AND THE ODOR ALMOST UNBEARABLE. All remedies and treatments which I tried failed to do me any good. When at last I began taking S. S. S., continuing for about four months, AM CERTAINLY WELL. I took S. S. S. under the supervision of a physician of 2 years active practice, by your order. Previously to taking S. S. S. I at times could scarcely walk about. NOW I CAN WALK ALL DAY, AND I HAVE TO THANK S. S. S. AND IT ONLY FOR MY CURE.

Yours truly,

Finally, I commenced taking S. S. S. under the advice and supervision of a first-class physician. In a short time I began to improve in flesh and all the sores healed and I could feel and know that I was well and to S. S. S. must the credit be given of my entire restoration to health. I have not takens dose for more than six months and am as free from sores or blemish as any one and feel that I have a new lease on life. Respectfully, LOTTIE ROSS.

Stealing Clothes.

Day before yesterday was wash-day with Mrs. Henry Thompson, who resides on Hillyard street, and that night the clothes were hung up in the basement of the house, so that they might be dry enough to iron yesterday, but during the night some thief forced a window open and when the family awoke yesterday morning they ascertained that nearly every piece of clothing had been stolen. The police are now engaged searching for the thief.

Stealing Postage Stamps.

M. J. Pike, a young white man who has been clerking for some time past for Mr. Parrett, on Broad street, was yesterday morning arrested by Officer Culberson upon a warrant charging him with larceny. It appears from what the prosecution claim that Pike was discharged some few weeks ago for crookedness, and at the time of his dismissal secured some keys with which he has since frequently entered the store and stolen postage stamps and tered the store and stolen postage stamps and stamped envelopes. These he would take to the Atlanta post-office and then exchanged them for money.

meeting of the Atlanta Home insurance company incorporotors in this city for the purpose of affecting a permanent organization. This company is to be organized under a charter granted by the last legislature, and has a capital of $400,000. Messrs. T. I. Healey, E. W. Marsh, S. M. Inman, John Mecasin and Jacob Elsa are the pages of the graptemen. Jacob Elsas are the names of the gentlemen who are to pass on the solvency of the subscriptions. Those conversant with the names of those who have subscribed say that this company will be one of the strongest and best fire insurance companies in the south.

About daylight yesterday morning, Mr. Tom Farley, who lives on Mechanic street, was aroused from his slumbers by a noise in the yard. Listening a few seconds, he become satisfied that some one was making a raid upon the chicken house, and in order to protect his property, he seized a revolver and sallied forth. As he emerged from the rear door of his house he sighted some one climbing the fence in a hurry, and in an instant a bullet went flying after him, but without taking effect. An examination of the coop showed that the thief had gotten away with a dozen chickens.

Remembering the Dead. Colonel Thomas H. Hays, general superin-tendent of the Southern Pullman palace car company, left for Florida yesterday, after having spent two days in this city. Colonel Hays is accompanied by his daughter, and arrived in Atlanta day before yesterday morning. Soon after their arrival they earned that the day was to be observed as memorial day, and being closely related to General Ben Hardin Helm, who is buried in Oakland, they decided to remain and take part in the ceremonies, and the result was that General Helm's grave was profusely cov-ered with flowers by the fair hand of his niece, Miss Hays.

We printed a synopsis of Colonel Hoge's address on memorial day. The speech was a good one, and we give it in full by request of friends:

My friends: I take a full share of the disappointment occasioned by the non-appearance of the orator whom we all expected to hear. His splendid record as a soldier, his high character as a man, his intellectual gifts and his extensive and varied at tainments justified as they awoke the liveliest anticipations. We may rest assured, however, that nothing short of a providential hindrance could have detained him, for he belonged to that class of soidiers, who in the camp were never absent without leave: on the march never foraged nor straggled and on the field never flinched.

CHAMBERLIN.

After Forty-Eight Hours' Suffering from a Wound in Mr. Alex Joyner died in his room over Horsey's hat store, at the corner of Line and Pryor streets, last night at 12:30 o'clock, from Pryor streets, last night at 12:30 o clock, from a knife wound inflicted by Romalies Shields, a negro man. Tuesday night last, near the ice mill. On that night Mr. Joyner, in company with two friends, Messrs. Venable and Deen, had been visiting some friends on Nelson street, and were returning home, when Mr. Joyner received the wound of which he died

Mr. Joyner received the wound of which he died

As they were passing along Alabama street, and when near the ice mill, they were suddenly met by Shields as he rushed out of an alley, running away from some one who seemed to be pursuing him. Shields seeing Mr. Joyner directly in front of him, supposed that he was there for the purpose of stopping him, and with an open knife rushed upon Mr. Joyner and stabbed him in the left side, just under the arm, penetrating the lung. Shields then rushed at Mr. Dean, and after cutting his coat in many places, made off.

Mr. Joyner's wound was instantly discovered and he was at once taken to his room, where Dr. Ridly examined the cut and ascertained that it was a bad one. At that time, whenever one. At that time, whenever Mr. Joyner would breathe the air would pass out of the wound. The next morning early Dr. Westmoreland was called in, and in a short time he and Dr. Ridley came to the conclusion that Mr. Joyner's condition was a desperate one.

The news of his injuries spread rapidly and in a short time so many had called to see the boy who was so well known and so generally boy who was so wen't known and so generally liked that the physicians were compelled to refuse any one admittance. Until Thursday morning his condition gave hopes of a recovery, but after that time he began to sink aud continued to sink until death claimed him.

Up to 9 o'clock last night he was perfectly conscious, but after that hour he knew nothing. His friends saw the end approaching

Up to 9 o'clock last night he was perfectly conscious, but after that hour he knew nothing. His friends saw the end approaching, and with a light step and downcast countenance they passed in and out of his room looking for the last time upon the face of him whom they had learned to love. Beside him were his best and truest friends in lite. Mr. Ed McCandless, Mr. Sam Venable and Captain Gay, and these then held him as his last breath passed away.

Mr. Joyner was just twenty-two years of age. He was a young man of rare business qualification, and always during life conducted himself in such a manner as to win the confidence, respect and love of all with whom he met. He never failed to do some act whereby trouble was saved another and was never happier than when doing a friend a kindness. For the past five years he has been in Captain Gay's insurance office, which he entered as an office boy. Since then he has filled every position in that office and at the time of his death was chief clerk. Never during that time was he known to neglect a duty or to fail to lighten the labors of others when an opportunity was offered. He was faithful to every trust and never violated any confidence vested in him.

He leaves a father, two brothers and four him. He leaves a father, two brothers and four sisters to mourn his loss. Cap Joyner, the city marshal, and Mrs. Oliver and Mrs. Brown were with him when he died.

THE SMALL-POX. One Death But No New Cases Developed Yesterday
Yesterday was the third day on which no case of small-pox was developed. The city was unusually quiet and rumors were not so numerous as they had been on the days previous. Vaccination progressed as usual. There numerous as they had been on the days previous. Vaccination progressed as usual. There is a very general desire among the colored people to become protected, and a very large proportion of the vaccination that is being done is among them. A great many go to the free office, while others are willing to pay and go to the first doctor whom they see. Yesterday a Constitution reporter saw a drayman stop in front of a drug store, go in, bare his arm and get vaccinated. He then resumed his draying with an expression of countenance which showed the most supreme satisfaction and the greatest confidence in the protection that had been given him by the simple operation. The colored people have seen that vaccination is a protection, and each man and woman is taking advantage of simple operation. The colored people have seen that vaccination is a protection, and each man and woman is taking advantage of it. It takes very little time and trouble, as is shown in the case referred to, and that trouble everyone car well afford to take. The physicians of the city are urging that safety does not lie in the treatment that can now be given the disease but in protection by vaccination. A very large proportion of those who take small-pox die, but it is the rarest thing to hear of a death by verioloid, the form of the disease which attacks those who are successfully vaccinated and are afterwards exposed. Even if one is exposed before vaccination it is possible to modify the disease by vaccination. In the Beaver Slide cases, the benefit of vaccination was forcibly shown. The girl, Myra Tate, "broke out" on one Friday. On the succeeding Monday the case was pronounced small-pox, and the inmates of the building were vaccinated. The vaccinations were successful. One week after the vaccination five of the inmates of the Beaver Slide were taken with varioloid showing that they had been exposed to small-pox. Not one of them went to bed on account of the disease, and all are well to-day. Howard Horton was forcibly vaccinated, and when he recovered from his case of varioloid he pointed to the grave of the girl from whom he had caught small-pox and said that if he had not been vaccinated he believed he would, "be lying alongside of that gal in the ground." Dr. Baird says that the said that it he had not been vaccinated he be-lieved he would, "be lying alongside of that gal in the ground." Dr. Baird says that the world could give up everything else that it knows of medicine better than it could spare vaccination. Sam Logan, the colored man whose case developed on Hilliard street, died yesterday about eleven o'clock. His was the only death yesterday from small-pox.

The Ticket Scalpers.

The case of Ellis vs. Shelton, Stokes and Garland, was up in the superior court yester-day. This is the case in which the defendants bought a number of railroad tickets to Rogers, Arkansas, at $21,25 each, when the real price was $31,25, there having been an error of ten dollars made in making up the rate. Ellis seeks to enjoin them from selling the tickets. The case will be concluded this morning.

NICHOLSON & JAMES 3 PRYOR STREET. KIMBALL HOUSE.

Special attention is called to the sale, by Colone Adair, this evening of 27 vacant lots within 500 yards of centre of the city. It is an important sale. The property is well located and must enhance in value as fast as any that has been offered lately. rmon by Rev. S. P. Jones to Men in the Opera

This original preacher, who is now aiding Gener al Evans in the First Methodist church revival, habeen requested to breach a sermon to men only, the place suggested being the opera house and the time next Sunday at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The reputation of the preacher will secure a crowded audience. The press, wherever he has preached to men only, has spoken in highest terms of the sermon and its good results.

The Euquirer-Sun says of his preaching in Columbus: "We have not heard the truth tolso fully, so plainly, so carnestly, so fearlessly or with such determination ever before from the pulpit. We have heard hundreds socak of the sermon and all agree that it was the truth, even though a few thought it was too plainly told." From the Chronicle and Sentinel the following opinion is taken: "Sunday atternoon, in a discourse directed especially to gentlemen, he addressed a full church. There is interest in his words, and a surprise in nearly every thought. He has the faculty of seizing the attention, and he is nearly certain of carrying conviction to the heart." Such expressions from the press of the state might be multiplied, but the foregoing extracts are sufficient. Doubtless the opera house can be secured and the benefit of the impressive sermon can be given to the city.
